UNIVERSITY OF SAN FRANCISCO POLICY AGAINST UNLAWFUL HARASSMENT, DISCRIMINATION AND RETALIATION

In order to advance one of the University’s fundamental values, creating a culture of service that respects and promotes the dignity of every person, and in order to assist the University in its efforts for compliance with the mandate of law, the University here states its Policy to prohibit all forms of unlawful harassment, discrimination and retaliation in the course of any University educational and employment activity.

This Policy protects all University students, faculty members, staff members, administrators, contractors and all other individuals engaged in University activities.

This Policy must be complied with/by all University students, faculty members, staff members, administrators, contractors and all other individuals engaged in University activities.

Unlawful Harassment involves social behavior that is offensive to others on the basis of their characteristics that are protected by law. Such prohibited unlawful harassment can include the following when occurring on the basis of characteristics protected by law:

- Verbal conduct such as abusive or other epithets, derogatory comments, slurs, or unwelcome sexual advances, invitations, or comments;
- Visual conduct such as abusive or other derogatory posters, photography, cartoons, drawings, or gestures;
- Physical conduct such as unwanted abusive or other touching, blocking normal movement, or interfering with work;
- Threats and demands, such as those which seek submission to sexual requests, in order to retain employment or education benefits and/or offers of job or education benefits or conditions in return for sexual favors;
• Stereotyping behavior directed towards persons of the same or different sex including transgender individuals on the basis of gender, gender expression and/or gender identity;

• Abusive conduct that may include repeated verbal abuse, such as derogatory remarks, insults, and epithets, verbal or physical conduct that a reasonable person would find threatening or intimidating; and

• Sexual assault, dating violence, stalking and domestic violence that impacts a student’s course of work or study at the University.

Unlawful Discrimination involves employment or educational decisions that are adverse to others on the basis of their characteristics that are protected by law. Such prohibited unlawful discrimination can include the following when adverse and undertaken on the basis of characteristics protected by law:

• Decisions affecting student education involving admissions, financial aid, code of conduct and co-curricular activities, etc.;

• Employment decisions such as failure to interview, hire or promote and discipline, leave-of-absence decisions, selection for training, transfer, layoff, termination and other conditions of employment such as salary, evaluations, etc.

• Access to University facilities, services and equipment.

Unlawful Retaliation includes both offensive social behavior and adverse employment or educational decisions, on the basis of a University person’s lawful and good-faith actions that are protected by law or by University policy. Actions that are protected by law include a wide range of a University person’s actions that are taken in good faith furtherance of this Policy, of the University ethics policy, and/or of fundamental policies of the University or of federal, state or local government, including but not limited to criminal enforcement.

Characteristics that are Protected by Law include age (except for minors in certain cases); ancestry and national origin; citizenship and immigration status under the law; color and race; disability, if qualified without or with reasonable accommodation and including HIV and AIDS status; gender, gender identity and expression including sexual and gender orientation and childbearing characteristics such as pregnancy, childbirth, breastfeeding and associated medical conditions, if qualified without or with reasonable accommodation; marital status including family status; medical condition inclusive of genetic characteristics; military and veteran status with US armed forces; religious beliefs and status (including religious dress and grooming practices); FMLA CFRA leave status; denial of family and medical care leave; certain physical characteristics such as height and weight in San Francisco; and, a person’s affiliation with persons who are thusly protected.

Note about Sexual or Gender Harassment: Conduct in violation of this policy occurs when an individual’s behavior involves (1) unwelcome sexual advances; (2) unwelcome requests for sexual favors; (3) other unwelcome verbal, physical, or visual behavior of a sexual nature; or (4) harassment or discrimination based on gender. Sexual or gender harassment need not be motivated by sexual desire to be prohibited. Such conduct is a violation of this policy and of law when:

- Submission to such behavior is made explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual’s education or employment; or
- Submission to, or rejection of, such behavior by an individual is used as a basis for educational or employment decisions; or
- Such behavior otherwise has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with, or otherwise creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive educational or employment environment.

Note about Several Definitions or Topics:

- Abusive Conduct: Conduct in the workplace, with malice, that a reasonable person would find hostile, offensive, and unrelated to the University’s legitimate interests.

- Gender Expression: Gender-related appearance or behavior, regardless of whether stereotypically associated with an individual’s sex at birth.

- Gender Identity: A person’s identification as male, female, or a gender different from the person’s sex at birth, or transgender.

- Sex Stereotype: An assumption about someone’s appearance or behavior—or about the ability or inability to perform certain types of work—based on a myth, social expectation or generalization about the individual’s sex.

- Transgender: A general term that refers to a person whose gender identity differs from the person’s sex at birth. A transgender person may or may not have a gender expression that is different from the social expectations of the sex assigned at birth. A transgender person may or may not identify as “transsexual.”
Reports of Unlawful Harassment, Discrimination Retaliation that Involve Students:

Persons who in good faith believe or experience what they may regard as incidents of unlawful harassment, discrimination or retaliation that affect or involve students of the University, are requested to make timely reports to the Office of the Title IX Coordinator, by using one or more of the written, oral and/or electronic reporting options listed under the heading “Resources” on pages 5-6.

Reports of Unlawful Harassment, Discrimination Retaliation that Involve Employees and Others Who Are Not Students:

Persons who in good faith believe or experience what they may regard as incidents of unlawful harassment, discrimination of retaliation that affect or involve employees of the University or affect other persons involved in University activities who are not students, are requested to make timely reports to Human Resources, Office of the Director of Employment, by using one or more of the written, oral and/or electronic reporting options listed under the heading “Resources” on pages 5-6.

Obligation of Staff and Faculty Members to Make Reports

All staff members and faculty members who personally know of incidents of unlawful harassment, discrimination or retaliation that affect or involve students of the University or affect or involve other University persons, are obliged by the University to make timely reports, unless a report of such incidents has already been made.

General Information about Reports

All reports shall be expeditiously assessed and may need to be internally investigated by the University, or by an external professional retained for the matter and which may require interviews of students, faculty, staff, administrators, independent contractors and all other individuals and a report of the assessment. All University persons have a duty to cooperate with the University in its review and in its further proceedings. The University seeks to take corrective action whenever it believes that this is needed for the proper operation of the University. At times, corrective action may include disciplinary action toward the person(s) whose conduct is found to violate this Policy or is otherwise found to be inappropriate. Disciplinary action may include, but is not limited to warning, suspension, or termination from employment, warning sanctions, suspension, or expulsion from the University, the University’s residential facilities, or other affiliation with the University. Disciplinary action, including expulsion, and/or any other corrective action shall be implemented in a manner consistent with other University policies and procedures and applicable University collective bargaining agreements, as will rights of grievance and appeal of corrective actions.
