A Brief History

The University of San Francisco began in 1855 as a one-room schoolhouse named St. Ignatius Academy. Its founding is interwoven with the establishment of the Jesuit Order in California, European immigration to the western United States, and the population growth of California and San Francisco as a result of the California Gold Rush.

On October 15, 1855, the school opened its doors to its first class. Three students showed up, a number that gradually grew to 65 by 1858. In 1859, Anthony Maraschi, S.J., the founding president of St. Ignatius Academy, incorporated the institution under California state law, obtained a charter to issue college degrees, formed a board of trustees, and renamed the institution St. Ignatius College. Student enrollment, composed largely of first- and second-generation Irish and Italian immigrants, increased to 457 by 1862.

Further growth in the number of students and rising property taxes prompted St. Ignatius Church and College to move in 1880 to the corner of Hayes Street and Van Ness Avenue, the current site of the Louise M. Davies Symphony Hall. The college opened its doors to 650 students and rave reviews in the local press. The institution occupied a full city block and was described as having “scientific laboratories and departments” as “thoroughly equipped as money can make them” and a library that contained “the cream of knowledge on all necessary subjects.” The attached church was described as “magnificent” and could hold up to 4,000 people. In 1903, the college added a “splendid new gymnasium,” described as the best in the city.

The history of St. Ignatius Church and College at this location came to an abrupt end on April 18, 1906. On the morning of that day, an earthquake, followed by several days of fire, brought the church and college, and most of San Francisco, to almost complete ruin. The city and the institution, however, quickly rebuilt from the devastation. In September 1906, St. Ignatius Church and School reopened in temporary quarters, known as the “shirt factory,” on the southwest corner of Hayes and Shrader streets, currently the site of one of the buildings of St Mary’s Medical Center. In 1927, St. Ignatius College moved into its new Liberal Arts Building, the present Kalmanovitz Hall, near the corner of Fulton and Parker Streets. In 1930, at the request of several alumni groups, St. Ignatius College changed its name to the University of San Francisco.

For 161 years, the University of San Francisco has served the citizens of San Francisco and enriched the lives of thousands of people. The institution has graduated students who went on to become leaders in government, education, business, journalism, sports, the sciences, nursing and health care, and the legal and medical professions. Among its alumni, the university counts three San Francisco mayors, a United States Senator, four California Supreme Court Justices, a California Lieutenant Governor, three Pulitzer Prize winners, three Olympic medalists, several professional athletes, and the former president of Peru.

Today the University of San Francisco enrolls more than 10,800 students in its five schools and colleges: The School of Law, founded in 1912; the College of Arts and Sciences, organized in 1925; the School of Management, which began in 1925 as the College of Commerce and Finance and was merged with the College of Professional Studies in 2009; the School of Education, which started as the Department of Education in 1947 and was upgraded to a school in 1972; and the School of Nursing and Health Professions, which began as the Department of Nursing in 1948 and became a school in 1954. USF is one of the most ethnically diverse universities in the nation. Among the entire fall 2015 student population, 49 percent were Asian, African-American, Latino, Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander, or Native American, and 17 percent were international. In 1964, USF became completely coeducational, though women had been enrolled in the evening programs in law and business since 1927, in education since 1947, and in nursing since 1948. In the fall of 2015, 63 percent of the overall student population was female.

Central to the mission of the University of San Francisco is the preparation of men and women to shape a multicultural world with generosity, compassion, and justice. The institution’s Vision, Mission, and Values Statement, approved by the Board of Trustees on September 11, 2001, after a year of formulation and campus-wide participation, captures the essence of this commitment in its opening paragraph: “The University of San Francisco will be internationally recognized as a premier Jesuit Catholic, urban University with a global perspective that educates leaders who will fashion a more humane and just world.” This mission permeates all aspects of the institution, including student learning and faculty development, curriculum design, program and degree offerings, alumni relations, publications, and a host of other institutional features.

In 2005, the University of San Francisco celebrated the 150th anniversary of its founding. The main USF campus currently occupies 55 acres near Golden Gate Park in San Francisco.

In addition, the university offers classes at four Northern California branch campuses (Sacramento, San Jose, Santa Rosa and Pleasanton), at a Southern California branch campus, and at locations in downtown San Francisco, including the Folger Building at 101 Howard Street and at the Presidio. The schools and colleges comprising the institution also offer students a multitude of international experiences and study-abroad programs that enrich the learning community and fulfill the university's mission. The institution has grown dramatically since its modest beginning. It continues, however, to fulfill a mission that stretches back in time to the founding of the Society of Jesus in 1540 by St. Ignatius of Loyola, that took root in San Francisco in 1855, and that flourishes today in a premier Jesuit Catholic University.

USF Basic Information

Full Name of Institution:

University of San Francisco

President:

Paul J. Fitzgerald, S.J.

Provost:

Donald E. Heller

Sponsorship and Control:

USF is an independent, private, non-profit institution of higher education governed by a 45-member Board of Trustees. It is one of the 28 Jesuit Catholic colleges and universities in the United States.

Founding and Charter:

USF was founded in 1855 and was granted a charter by the State of California to issue college degrees in 1859.

Accreditation:

The University of San Francisco is accredited by the WASC Senior College and University Commission (WSCUC), an accreditation first granted in 1950 by the Western College Association (WCA), the antecedent of WASC. In 2010, WASC reaffirmed USF's accreditation for 9 years.

USF is also accredited by several professional accrediting bodies, including, but not limited to, the American Bar Association (ABA), the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing (CTC), AACSB International—The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE), the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration (NASPAA), and the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH).

Classification by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching:

USF is classified as a Doctoral/Moderate Research and Community Engaged University.

Under the 2015 Carnegie Foundation classification system, USF is characterized as balancing arts, sciences, and the professions at the undergraduate level; with some graduate coexistence; including doctoral research in education; with the majority of its students being undergraduates; as more selective, with a high level of transfer-in students; and as a four-year, full-time, large-sized, and primarily residential institution. In 2006, USF received the community engagement classification in both possible categories, curriculum engagement and outreach and partnership. This classification was renewed in 2015 for 10 years.

Select Firsts, Honors, and Achievements in 2015 and 2016

- USF was listed as a Tier One National University in the 2016 U.S. News & World Report, was tied for 6th in undergraduate student ethnic diversity, and tied for 9th in the percentage of international students, among 280 national universities.
- In 2015, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching renewed USF's classification for 10 years as a community engaged institution in both possible categories: curriculum engagement and outreach and partnership. In 2006, USF was one of just 62 institutions that received the initial community engagement classification in those two categories.
- For the eighth consecutive year, USF was named to the President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll by the Corporation for National and Community Service. This honor highlights USF students' exemplary service on issues ranging from poverty and homelessness, to environmental justice. Honorees are chosen on the basis of the scope and impact of service projects, percentage of students participating in service activities, and the extent to which the school offers academic service-learning courses.
- Graduateprograms.com ranked USF's MBA program as 45th among its top 50 Graduate Programs in the spring of 2015, based on rating and reviews from 70,000 current or recent graduate students participating in over 1,600 graduate programs nationwide.
- The Washington Monthly ranked USF as 18th out of 257 national universities on a combined measure of the number of staff and students supporting community service, and 20th overall for its contribution to the public good for academic research, community service, and support for lower-income students.

Athletics

In November 2015, Silicon Valley philanthropists John A. and Susan Sobrato, pledged $15 million, the largest single gift in USF's history, to expand and renovate the War Memorial Gymnasium, creating the multi-use Sobrato Center to benefit all students and to further the Jesuit commitment to educating the whole person.

In 2014–2015, Jennifer Azzi, women's head basketball coach, guided her team to one of its most successful seasons since the turn of the century as the Lady Dons fought their way to the WCC Championships and earned a bid to the Women's National Invitational Tournament, the program's first postseason appearance since 2001–2002. On January 16, 2015, Coach Azzi was presented with the NCCA Silver Anniversary Award, which honors an individual's accomplishments on the court and their contributions to professional organizations and other civic activities on the 25th anniversary of the conclusion of their playing careers. A member of the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame, Azzi's list of accomplishments include a national championship at Stanford, the Wade Trophy and National Player of the Year honors in 1990, a gold medal as part of the 1996 United States Olympic Team, a long professional playing career, and numerous civic activities.

In the fall of 2015, there were 270 student-athletes at USF, 157 of whom had full or partial athletic scholarships.

Among the student-athletes, 138 were men (81 of whom had scholarships), and 132 were women (76 of whom had scholarships).

During the 2015-16 academic year, USF student-athletes performed approximately 1,500 hours of community service including:

- San Francisco RBI, which provided literacy instruction and support to young children, raising literacy rates,
- Harper for Kids where USF student-athletes made over 20 classroom visits and spoke to nearly 3,000 children about personal achievement.
- St. Vincent de Paul Society and St. Anthony Foundation, where student-athletes and staff served over 5,000 meals to the less fortunate citizens of San Francisco.

- Shortstop Nico Giarratano captured defensive player of the year honors in 2016.
- Miguel Aguilar, a senior forward for the Dons soccer team, who was named to the WCC All-Academic Team from 2012 to 2014, was selected 17th by D.C. United in the overall Major League Soccer's annual super draft held on January 15, 2015.
- Women's soccer enjoyed its best season in program history. Jim Millinder was named NSCAA West Region Coach of the Year as the team achieved its best overall record (13-4-3), highest winning percentage (.725), and most conference wins (7).
- For the second straight year, men's tennis competed in doubles at Indoor Nationals. Bernardo Saraiva '15 won the ITA Northwest Regional Arthur Ashe Leadership & Sportsmanship Award, and was named ITA Northwest Region Senior Player of the Year.
- Women's cross country Coach Helen Lehman-Winters guided the squad to the program's third consecutive NCAA Championship appearance.
- In men's cross country, Alex Short racked up four top 20 finishes and earned All-West Coast Conference and All-West Region honors.
- Volleyball featured six women on the West Coast Conference All-Academic Team.
- In men's basketball, point guard Devin Watson earned a spot on the WCC All-Freshman Team last season and senior captain Tim Derksen was named to the All-WCC Preseason Team.
- In April 2015, USF Boxing Club fighters came away with two titles in the U.S. Intercollegiate Boxing Association (USIBA) national championship. USF's Akira William Chin '17, an English major, defended his welterweight title by defeating Syracuse University's Tony Choa. Leo Gutarov '17, a Finance major, lifted the light heavyweight belt by defeating Saul Hernandez of California State University Northridge. The pairs win adds to the USF boxing Club's reputation as a national powerhouse. USF boxers have won six USIBA national championships and boxed internationally for the U.S. and Philippines boxing teams and at the 2004 Summer Olympics in Greece. The club has multiple Golden Glove champions, as well as regional and national titles.
- The University of San Francisco's NCAA Division I teams include men's basketball, soccer, baseball, golf, tennis, track, and cross-country, and women's basketball, cross-country, golf, soccer, tennis, volleyball, sand volleyball, and track.
- Mariya Koroleva, a Master in Sport Management student, qualified for the 2016 Olympics in synchronized swimming. In 2012, she also competed in the same sport for the U.S. Olympic team.

Athletics Continued

- USF NCAA Division I teams have won eight national championships since 1949, including four in men's soccer, three in men's basketball, and one in men's tennis. NCAA individual championships were also won in fencing and in tennis.
- The men's basketball team has won 15 West Coast Conference titles since 1949.
- The men's soccer team has won 35 West Coast Conference titles since 1948.
- From 1987 to 2015, the women's basketball team won four West Coast Conference titles, secured three NCAA tournament berths, two NIT invitations, and had one Sweet Sixteen appearance.
- Sixteen former USF baseball players have made it to the major leagues since 1911.
- USF Dons have been in the Olympics 25 times, including once in the Winter Olympics.

Key Events

Fall 2015-Spring 2016

September 10

USF President Paul J. Fitzgerald, S.J., was a featured panelist for the Commonwealth Club public affairs forum on "Pope Francis: Climate Changer?" Joining Fr. Fitzgerald at one of the nation's leading public affairs forums were Sam Liccardo, mayor of San Jose, and Reverend Sally Bingham, founder of Interfaith Power and Light, and canon for the environment in the Episcopal Diocese of California.

October 4

Gordon Getty, class of 1955, was named alumnus of the year at the University's Alumni Awards Gala. Mr. Getty has composed internationally performed operas and other musical works, received numerous musical awards, founded investment companies, and created the Ann and Gordon Getty Foundation, which awards millions of dollars each year to nonprofit organizations. He is one of six outstanding alumni who have been honored in past years for their service to the community and dedication to USF.

October 4

USF's School of Education celebrated the 40th anniversary of its doctoral programs, which include organization and leadership, curriculum and instruction, international and multicultural education, Catholic educational leadership, and counseling and psychology. Speakers at the event, organized by professor Patricia Mitchell, included Paul J. Fitzgerald, USF president; Kevin Kumashiro, present dean of the School of Education; and Allen Calvin, the School's former dean, who initiated the doctoral programs in 1975.

October 30

Donald E. Heller, Dean of the College of Education at Michigan State University, was selected as USF's new provost and academic vice president, from among 250 candidates nationwide. While dean at Michigan State, Dr. Heller simultaneously served as a trustee at DePaul University. His expertise includes finance and enrollment in higher education; affirmative action; and policies and programs that promote college access and success for first-generation, minority, and low-income students. He has published more than 175 articles, book chapters, and other scholarly works, is the editor or co-editor of six books, and has held faculty positions at several major universities. Heller earned a doctorate in higher education from Harvard University.

November 15

Former USF President John P. Schlegel, S.J., died after being diagnosed with pancreatic cancer earlier in the year. Fr. Schlegel served as USF's 26th president from 1991 to 2000. During his administration, USF's enrollment expanded, student and faculty diversity increased, the campus was significantly beautified, and the university conducted the largest fundraising campaign in its history up to that time.

November 18

Silicon Valley philanthropists John A. and Susan Sobrato, pledged $15 million to USF, the largest single gift in USF's history, to expand and renovate the War Memorial Gymnasium, creating the multi-use Sobrato Center to benefit all students and to further the Jesuit commitment to educating the whole person.

December 8

Dolores M. Staudenraus, a decorated battlefield nurse during the Vietnam War, who later worked as a director for the U.S. Public Health Service, left an $8 million estate gift to USF. The gift will be designated for student scholarships, with a preference to students from Stockton and the Central Valley, where Ms. Staudenraus was raised. She earned her undergraduate nursing degree from USF's School of Nursing in 1954, and obtained a master's degree in public health from UC Berkeley.

December 18

USF honored 431 undergraduates, 371 graduate students, and 44 doctoral candidates at the winter commencement. Speakers included Janice Hatsuko Mirikitani, activist and former poet laureate of San Francisco, who received an honorary doctorate; John L. Hennessy, the president of Stanford University, who received an honorary doctorate; and John F. Nicolai, class of 1971, a USF board member and partner at the investment advisory firm Greer Anderson Capital.

January 19

The estate of Paul J. Fry, M.D., bequeathed $1 million to USF to establish the Paul and Delores Fry Family Endowed Scholarship to support scholarships for undergraduate students with financial need. Paul was the father of two USF alumni and the grandparent of one.

February 1

The Leo T. McCarthy Center's Engage San Francisco Program received a $200,000 grant from the 50 Fund, the Super Bowl's philanthropic arm, to support mental health care coordination efforts among children and young adults in the Western Addition.

March 1

The Loyola House Jesuit community made a $3.35 million gift to advance the Jesuit identity of the University of San Francisco. The Jesuit Community Endowment at USF will extend the educational work of Jesuits by supporting the development and recruitment of Jesuit teaching scholars, as well as programs and specific projects that involve Jesuit leaders.

After a national search, Ellen Ryder was selected to be USF's new Vice President for Marketing Communications, heading a team of 35 marketing and communications professionals. Ryder came to USF from the College of the Holy Cross, a Jesuit institution in Worcester, Massachusetts, where she served as Chief Marketing and Communications Officer.

April 20

Park Loughlin, the parent of a USF graduate, made a $1.25 million gift to support nursing scholarships in the School of Nursing and Health Professions, empowering many future nurses to engage in the school's innovative programs and Jesuit perspective on health care for the whole person.

May 12

At the annual gala dinner, USF awarded the 2016 California Prize for Service and the Common Good to Salesforce.org for its commitment to giving back to the community and setting a new standard for integrated corporate philanthropy. Since 1999, Salesforce has donated more than $100 million in grants throughout the world, including $14 million in grants to the San Francisco Unified School District. Salesforce employees have volunteered more than 1.1 million hours to their local communities, and Salesforce.org has powered more than 27,000 nonprofits and higher education institutions by offering technology for free or at a discount.

May 19-21

USF honored 1,270 undergraduates, 908 graduate students, 37 doctoral candidates, and 166 law students at the spring commencement. Commencement speakers included Tobias Wolff, writer and National Medal of Arts honoree; Edward Chen, the first Asian American to serve as a San Francisco federal judge; Olga Talamante, executive director of the Chicana/Latina foundation; Carl Nolte, San Francisco Chronicle columnist; and Regina Gayle Jackson, East Oakland Youth Development Center CEO, all of whom received honorary doctorates. Other commencement speakers included Dixon Doll, USF trustee; Judith Karshmer, Dean, School of Nursing and Health Professions; and Sabeen Ali, Angelhack CEO.

May 24

Margaret Wooding Baker, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and Associate Professor of Biobehavioral Nursing and Health Systems at the University of Washington in Seattle, was named the new Dean of USF's School of Nursing and Health Professions after a national search. Dr. Baker's research interests and community work have focused on elder abuse and mistreatment. She was formerly a senior health policy analyst for Washington State, past president of Washington's Council on Nursing Education, and a member of the state's Nursing Action Coalition.

Faculty/staff Publications, Presentations, and Awards 2015-2016

Ursula Aldana, Professor of Leadership Studies, School of Education, received a 4.5 year grant for $163,000 from the International Baccalaureate Organization, a Swiss Foundation. Professor Aldana will collaborate with Dr. Anysia Mayer (CSU Stanislaus) and Dr. Patricia Gandara (UCLA) to examine school outcomes and engagement of high school and postsecondary students from low-income households in California who participate in the International Baccalaureate Diploma Programme.

Monisha Bajaj, Associate Professor, International and Multicultural Education, School of Education, received a grant of $49,554 from the Spencer Foundation. Her project is entitled "Transnational Civic Engagement of Immigrant and Refugee Youth at a Newcomer High School in California." Her research examines how recent immigrant youth engage with notions of rights, citizenship, and civic identity as they integrate into the U.S. and prepare for post-secondary transitions.

David Batstone, Professor, School of Management, was named by Gentry Magazine in March 2015 as one of its 50 "Philanthropists of the Year" for his work in attempting to end modern human trafficking in the world, through his San Francisco-based nonprofit organization, Not for Sale.

Megan Bolitho, Assistant Professor, Chemistry, College of Arts and Sciences was awarded a two-year grant from the Research Corporation for Science Advancement. The grant, the Single Investigator Cottrell College Science Award, provides $35,000 to faculty members in the first three years of their academic careers. Bolitho's research is centered around quorum sensing (QS), a means of communication utilized by bacterial cells to coordinate group behaviors.

Wanda Borges, Associate Dean for Graduate Programs and Community Partnership, School of Nursing and Health Professions, received a 3-year, $600,000 grant from the Helene Fund Health Trust. Fifty percent of the grant will be used to establish the endowed Helene Fund Health Trust Scholarship Fund to provide financial aid for Master's Entry Nursing Students. The remainder of the grant will be used to fund current financial aid for students enrolled in Master's Entry Nursing Programs.

Wanda Borges and Mary Kate Wood, School of Nursing and Health Professions, received a grant from California's Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development for $153,000. The grant will provide eight education stipends to doctoral students in the psychiatric mental-health nursing program over the next three and half years. The grant will support students who are committed to working in the public mental health system and prepare them to deliver mental health services that promote wellness, recovery, and resilience.

William Bosl, Assistant Professor, School of Nursing and Health Professions, received an award for $26,286 from St. Peter's University Hospital for a project entitled "Piloting Electrophysiological biomarkers for autism spectrum disorders (ASD) and related disorders in premature and low birth weight (LBW) infants." A total award of $56,115 is anticipated by the second year of the project. Dr. Bosl is Co-Principal Investigator and is responsible for the project design, analysis of EEG data, and mapping of EEG features to behavioral measures of cognitive development. The goal of the project is to find early clinically useful brain-based markers of emerging neurodevelopmental disorders in premature and LBW infants, who are at higher risk for developing autism spectrum disorders and other cognitive disorders. The grant is funded by the New Jersey Governor's Council for Medical Research and Treatment of Autism.

Rachel Brahinsky, Faculty Director, Graduate Program in Urban Affairs, College of Arts and Sciences, presented the talk "Whither Left Coast Progressivism?" at the European Urban Research Association City Futures III conference in June, 2014, in Paris.

Jeffery S. Brand, Professor Emeritus, School of Law,

Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. announced the appointment of Jeffery S. Brand to a judgeship in the Alameda County Superior Court. Jeff has been a professor at the University of San Francisco School of Law since 1986, where he served as dean from 1999-2013.

Brandon Brown, Professor of Physics, College of Arts and Sciences, authored Planck: Driven by Vision. Broken by War, published by Oxford University Press. The book details the life, work, and times of Max Plank, the famous German physicist who made enormous contributions to his academic field, even as he was suffering personal tragedies during the world wars. Brown's book was very favorably reviewed in Physics Today, a publication of the American Institute of Physics, and was named a best history book of 2015 by The Times of London.

Richard Callahan, Associate Professor, School of Management, was awarded a $22,000 grant from the Sierra Health Foundation as part of a $160,000 grant, and will be co-director of their upcoming Leadership Program. He will direct the design and deliver the program with Dr. Kenneth Kizer, Director of the Institute for Population Health Improvement and professor in the Medical School of the University of California, Davis. He was also awarded the Louis Brownlow Award for Outstanding Academic Paper by the American Society of Public Administration. The paper focused on common pool resources for environment sustainability.

John Callaway, Professor of Environmental Science, College of Arts and Sciences, will receive $47,982 over three years from the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS). USGS is the lead agency on this NASA-funded grant entitled "Developing a Nation Framework for Carbon Monitoring in Coastal Wetlands." Dr. Callaway will coordinate data compilation and analysis for one of the six national sites (coastal Louisiana) and participate in modeling and synthesis across the remaining sites (Florida Everglades, Chesapeake Bay, Waquoit Bay, San Francisco Bay, and Puget Sound).

Patrick Camangian, Associate Professor, School of Education, was awarded the 2015 National Academy of Education/Spencer Postdoctoral Fellowship, a $70,000 award. Through research in the health sciences and critical social theory, his project "From Coping to Hoping: Teaching Youth to Thrive through Trauma," will develop a robust framework for understanding how pedagogy can be both critical and culturally relevant and sustaining, while also better account for the holistic demands youth in urban settings must negotiate. This interdisciplinary framework will serve as the analytical lens for a corpus of qualitative data for an ongoing teacher-action research project in the Oakland Unified School District. He also won the American Educational Research Association's Scholar Activist Award for his work on transformative teaching in urban schools.

Alessandra Cassar, Professor of Economics, College of Arts and Sciences, published "Competing for the benefit of offspring eliminates the gender gap in competitiveness" in the journal Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. She was also quoted on CNN saying "For women, we always have to manage our image. We don't want to be seen as bossy but we can compete for children or other people because that does not lower our image."

Claire Castro, Professor of Chemistry and William Karney, Professor of Environmental Science, College of Arts and Sciences, have received a National Science Foundation research grant for $204,902. This funding will provide training for undergraduate students in many aspects of computational organic chemistry. The grant will also enable students to travel to regional and national meetings to present their results. This is the fourth consecutive NSF grant for the Castro-Karney research team.

Thomas Cavanaugh, Professor of Philosophy, College of Arts and Sciences, received an Enduring Questions National Grant for $18,359 from the National Endowment of Humanities agency for his new innovative course, "What is Wisdom?" Cavanaugh's course is an enquiry driven seminar class sponsored by the NEH's Enduring Questions program, and endeavors to answer questions about wisdom.

Hsiu-Lan Cheng, Assistant Professor, Counseling Psychology, School of Education, has received a grant to promote psychological research and training on health disparities. The title of her research project is "Development and Validation of a Measure of Patients' Perceived Racial/Ethnic Discrimination in the Health Care Setting." Dr. Cheng and her students will construct and validate how discrimination in health care is perceived and will apply the construct of racial microaggressions to enhance the understanding and measurement of discrimination in health care. The one year grant from the American Psychological Association is for $8,020.

Gretchen Coffman, Assistant Professor, Environmental Sciences, College of Arts and Sciences, was awarded a one-year grant from the National Geographic Society for her project "Restoration of Critically Endangered Cypress Trees of Laos" in the amount of $19,532. The grant will support her team of international researchers and USF students. They will locate living stands of cypress within a national protected area in Laos and collect seeds to propagate the trees and restore wetland ecosystems. The team will work with wildlife protection authorities and villagers to educate them about the value of conserving these trees for their nation. She also received a $5,000 grant from the Chicago Zoological Society for this same project. In 2015, Dr. Coffman and her team discovered a forest of Chinese swamp cypress trees, thought to be nearly extinct, setting off an international conservation effort, rooted at USF and growing in Laos. The University of California, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara River Habitat Restoration Project, is also funding Dr. Coffman. Dr. Coffman and her graduate students will develop a study design and conduct long-term monitoring of riparian plant growth and ecophysiology in the restoration area for the next five years. This grant, which is being funded by Ventura County Watershed Protection District, is for $50,000.

Karin Cotterman, Director of Engage San Francisco, Leo T. McCarthy Center for Public Service and Common Good, has been awarded a $200,000 grant from the Super Bowl 50 Fund. This grant supports the expansion of care for Western Addition children and teens who struggle with mental illness such as depression and PTSD.

was awarded $149,999 from the State of California Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development. This two-year grant will support the development of rural health academic practice partnership to increase inter-professional training opportunities for USF's nurse practitioner students. Ultimately, funds from this grant will improve the pipeline of healthcare providers for underserved rural communities. She was also awarded $2,000 from New York University for her project, the Interprofessional Oral Systemic Health Teaching Learning Activity. Working with dental health professionals, she will develop a web-based instructional resource to prepare dentistry students at University of the Pacific and USF School of Nursing and Health Professions for a clinical experience in pediatric oral-systemic health care.

Elizabeth Davis, Dean, School of Management, was named by the San Francisco Business Times to its 2016 list of the most influential women in the Bay Area. The list recognizes 100 outstanding women professionals who make a difference in their companies, industries, and communities.

Joshua Gamson, Professor and Chair of Communication, College of Arts and Sciences, recently published a book, Modern Families: Stories of Extraordinary Journeys to Kinship. In the book, Gamson tells personal and intimate tales of unconventional family creation—via adoption and assisted reproduction; by gay, straight, and trans individuals; coupled, single, and multi-parent families—while revealing how they were shaped within and against social, legal, and economic structures. His book was nominated for the Lambda Literary Award, honoring the best LGBT literature.

Dellanira Garcia, Assistant Professor, PsyD Program, School of Nursing and Health Professions, was awarded a National Institutes of Health Loan Repayment Program Award for her continued work on health disparities among Latino populations. This is a two-year award, and its objective is the recruitment and retention of qualified health professionals whose research focuses on minority health disparities or other health disparities.

Bill Ong Hing, Professor, School of Law, received a subaward in the amount of $86,300 from the Central American Resource Center (CARECEN). This support is from a grant funded by the City of San Francisco to provide legal representation to children and families with cases in the San Francisco Immigration Court in 2015. The subaward will be used to fund the School of Law's Immigration and Deportation Defense Clinic. In addition, he was awarded a grant from the California Department of Social Services in the amount of $112,000 to provide legal services to unaccompanied, undocumented minors. The Refugee Programs Bureau funds nonprofit legal organizations to provide these services, and USF's Immigration Law Clinic will represent 28 minors in Northern California in the next six-month period. He has also been awarded additional funds of $240,000 from the California Department of Social Service to continue providing legal services to unaccompanied, undocumented minors, primarily from Central America. The new award brings the total amount that Professor Hing has received to support the representation of minors to $352,000 from this funder.

Evelyn Ho, Professor and Chair of Communication, College of Arts and Sciences, has been awarded, along with her colleagues from UCSF Division of General Internal Medicine, a one-year $53,000 grant from the Mount Zion Health Fund to support the project "Heart Healthy Integrative Diet for Chinese American Patients." This research builds on a previous integrative patient education intervention for type 2 diabetes created and tested by an interdisciplinary team led by Professor Ho and involving USF students, and faculty from UCSF, USF, UCLA and St. Joseph University.

Peter Jan Honigsberg, Professor, School of Law, was awarded $57,967 from The Anita Roddick Foundation to continue the activities of his Witness to Guantanamo Project. The purpose of the grant is to film full-length interviews with former Guantanamo detainees and others involved in the prison in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba; as well as to preserve, edit, transcribe and post interview clips on its website, witnessstoguantanamo.com. The project has currently filmed interviews with 121 people in 18 countries. He also received $100,000 from the Oak Foundation and $5,000 from the Samuel Rubin Foundation for this project.

Alark Joshi and David Wolber, Computer Science, College of Arts and Sciences were awarded a grant of $34,650 from the Google Foundation to conduct a summer workshop, Mobile Computer Science Principles, that will enable San Francisco high school teachers to start courses based on App Inventor and mobile computing. USF students will work in San Francisco schools assisting teachers during the 2015-2016 school year to help sustain a community of practice.

Rosa Jimenez, Assistant Professor, School of Education, received a 2014-2015 National Academy of Education/Spencer Postdoctoral Fellowship award in the amount of $55,000. This year, 25 fellows were selected from a competitive pool of 365 applications from scholars of education.

Jessie Jones-Bell, Adjunct Faculty and Program Coordinator for the RN Transition to Practice Program, received a grant award of $99,992 from the Kaiser Permanente Northern California Fund for Health Education. This was the fourth award from Kaiser to support the New RN Transition to Practice Program in Community Settings. The grant will support two cohorts of New Graduate RNs interested in developing their professional role as a new RN in community-based settings.

Deneb Karentz, Professor, Biology and Environmental Science, College of Arts and Sciences, has been awarded $233,985 from the National Science Foundation for a five-year grant to manage and conduct an international polar biology training program in Antarctica for early-career scientists (PhD students and postdoctoral scholars). The funding will support two month-long advanced field courses focused on biological adaptations to environmental change in Antarctica, and will provide a unique opportunity for hands-on experience to the next generation of polar researchers. The grant is a collaborative effort with Dr. Donal Manahan at the University of Southern California who has been awarded $340,706. In addition to grant funding to USF and USC, NSF will provide logistics support for travel and research activities in Antarctica during the two field seasons (2016 and 2018). This is Dr. Karentz's tenth award from the NSF.

Courtney Keeler, Assistant Professor, School of Nursing and Health Professions, was awarded the second year of funding through a sub award from the University of California, San Francisco. She will receive $56,275 over a three-year period for her participation on an NIH grant entitled the "Economic Impact of Tobacco Taxes in the African American Community."

Kevin Kumashiro, Dean, School of Education, won the 2016 Social Justice in Education Award, presented by the American Education Research Association (AERA). He was recognized for his outstanding contributions to diversity, policy, and public advocacy in the field of education over two decades, according to AERA, an international higher education organization dedicated to improving teaching through research.

Judith Lambton, Professor, School of Nursing and Health Professions, received $1.7 million from a US Army Medical Research Acquisition Activity grant to help build a simulation research lab for the School of Nursing and Health Professions. This state-of-the-art lab will engage in research to determine how best to teach nursing students to improve patient safety and avoid medical error by using sophisticated clinical learning equipment. Nursing faculty will research simulation strategies that can be adapted across disciplines. The research design of this three-year grant includes both assessment and training and will allow faculty to measure the cognitive and affective levels of the students' ability.

Richard Leo, Professor, School of Law, authored "Police Interrogation and Coercion in Domestic American History: Lessons for the War on Terror," in Torture, Law and War: What are the Moral and Legal Boundaries on the Use of Coercion in Interrogation? (forthcoming).

Genevieve Leung, Assistant Professor, Rhetoric and Language, College of Arts and Sciences received a grant from Language Learning for $9,901 for her project "Cantonese English Dual Language Immersion." She and Dr. Yuuko Uchikoshi, from the University of California, Davis, will look at the linguistic gains, socioemotional impact and pedagogical implications of dual language immersion.

Jie Jack Li, Professor of Chemistry, College of Arts and Sciences, published a new book Top Drugs: Their History, Pharmacology, and Synthesis. Focusing on today's top ten important medications. Li explores the intriguing chemistry within and history behind our cardiovascular drugs, cancer drugs, ulcer drugs, and more.

Giovanni Meloni, Associate Professor and Von Soosten Chair of Chemistry, College of Arts and Sciences, has received an award from the American Chemical Society's (ACS) Petroleum Research Fund. He and his students will continue to expand their investigation of the photoionization behavior of species relevant to combustion chemistry. This new project will provide his undergraduate and graduate students practical access to research in physical chemistry. The three year grant is for $70,000 and is Dr. Meloni's second award from ACS.

Maria Ontiveros, Professor, School of Law, authored "Migrant Labour in the United States: Working Beneath the Floor for Free Labour?" in Migrants at Work: Immigration and Vulnerability in Labour Law.

Renate Otterbach, Senior Research Analyst, Office of Assessment and Accreditation Support had her paper "Combining Qualitative and Quantitative Methods to Identify Modifiable Factors for Retaining First-Time Freshmen" selected by the Rocky Mountain Association of Institutional Research (RMAIR) as the 2015 Best Paper. Dr. Otterbach will receive a grant to present her paper at the 2016 Association of Institutional Research (AIR) Forum in New Orleans.

Terence Patterson, Professor, Counseling Psychology, School of Education, was elected chair of the San Francisco Mental Health Board. The Mental Health Board represents and ensures the inclusion of the diverse voices of consumers, citizens, and stakeholders in advising how mental health services are administered and provided. Dr. Patterson was also re-appointed to a three-year term on the California Psychological Association Ethics Committee, which serves as a resource to psychologists throughout California on ethical issues.

D.A. Powell, Professor, English, College of Arts and Sciences, was the recipient of the 2015 Shelley Memorial Award, presented annually to a living American poet selected with reference to his or her genius by a jury of poets. D.A. Powell is the author of five poetry collections, including Useless Landscape, or a Guide for Boys, which received the National Book Critics Circle Award in poetry. In 2014, Graywolf released Repast: Tea, Lunch, and Cocktails, a reissue of Powell's first three collections.

Sami Rollins, Associate Professor, Computer Sciences, College of Arts and Sciences, was awarded a $10,000 grant from the National Science Foundation to support students at U.S. institutions who attended the 4th Networking Women (N2Women) Workshop. The conference was held at the ACM Special Interest Group on Data Communication in Chicago in August 2014. Student participants consisted of underrepresented graduate students who were exposed to state-of-the-art research and had the opportunity to interact with leading researchers and fellow graduate students. She also has a three-year NSF grant of $179,863 for a project to encourage broader adoption of renewable energy sources, which is key to minimizing dependence on the electric grid and fossil fuels. The project will provide an improved understanding of energy consumption and generation in homes, particularly green homes. Dr. Rollins, along with her collaborator, Dr. Nilanjan Banerjee, at the University of Arkansas, will conduct a broad study of 15 homes which are both grid-tied and off-grid, and powered by a variety of renewable sources. They will study energy generation and how it is consumed, and conduct research critical to encouraging the adoption of more environmentally responsible practices in the home.

Cecilia MacDowell Santos, Director of Latin American Studies, College of Arts and Sciences, was featured on Aljazeera talking about the possible impeachment of the Brazil president, Dilma Rousseff. Santos says that it is difficult to predict the outcome due to the economic recession, the Zika virus, and the upcoming Olympics.

Calla Schmidt, Assistant Professor, Environmental Science, College of Arts and Sciences, has been awarded a three-year grant from the National Science Foundation for $196,746. In collaboration with Mt. San Antonio College and the College of the Atlantic, Dr. Schmidt and her colleagues will engage a diverse cohort of undergraduates in hands-on, career-applicable environmental science experiences. The project will expand student awareness of traditional and nontraditional environmental science careers and focus on the skills and content knowledge necessary for career preparation.

Mary Seed, Professor; Jessie Jones-Bell, Adjunct Professor; and Cathryn Halford, Adjunct Professor; School of Nursing and Health Professions, received a one-year $44,537 grant from the Gordon and Betty Moore Foundation. The award will support the Ambulatory Care Training Institute, which will provide a toolkit for and consultation to other schools to develop transition-to-practice programs for new graduates. The Institute will also provide assistance for revising curricula to include content and clinical experiences in non-traditional settings. The grant was awarded through the foundation's Betty Irene Moore Nursing Initiative's Spotlight on Success Grant Program.

Laleh Shahideh, Associate Vice Provost and Dean of Academic Services, received a $25,000 gift from the Nick Traina Foundation for CAPS (Counseling and Psychological Services) After Hours, and the Nick Traina Crisis Funds for youth in jeopardy. This gift will help guarantee that students in crisis have access to potentially life-saving counseling services at the exact time they need to talk with a clinician. Additionally, this gift will help students in jeopardy who need immediate tuition assistance in order to continue their studies at USF because of a personal or family crisis.

Claire Sharifi, Gleeson Library| Geschke Center, and Barbara Sattler, Professor, School of Nursing and Health Professions, have been awarded $9,000 from the National Network of Libraries of Medicine. Their grant will enhance nursing skills by training nurses to use the National Library of Medicine's ToxNet suite of resources to assess and address environmental health. They will develop a new online training program for nurses that include case studies, specialized tutorials, guides and bibliographies. Participating nurses will learn how to integrate evidence based on environmental health resources into their professional practice.

Juliet V. Spencer, Professor of Biology, College of Arts and Sciences, was awarded a three-year NIH grant in the amount of $424,783. With funds from the NIH grant, Dr. Spencer and her student researchers will study the molecular interactions between human cytomegalovirus (HCMV) and the immune system. This will aid in the future development of an HCMV vaccine and could also identify new anti-viral drug targets. This is Dr. Spencer's fourth consecutive NIH grant. She also received a $300,000 grant from the Avon Foundation for Women to research this topic, and a $25,000 gift from Claudia and Roger Salquist for the purchase of a Thunderbolt Analyzer from Gold Standard Diagnostics for research by students and faculty.

Yaniv Stopnitzky, Assistant Professor, Economics, College of Arts and Sciences, received $99,999 from the BASIS project at the University of California, Davis, which is funded by the U.S. Agency for International Development. He and his colleagues from partner institutions (the University of Dar Es Salaam and the University of Alaska) will test a novel approach to improving the way that small-scale fisheries are managed. Over 18 months, the team will implement experimental games as a pedagogical tool for training individuals and communal organizations in how to participate effectively in local fishery management. The project will reduce overfishing and improve the well-being of the many fishing-dependent, rural communities in Tanzania.

John Sullivan, Professor of Biology, College of Arts and Sciences, received a two-year grant from the National Institutes of Health for $296,713. He is researching the disease schistosomiasis, which afflicts approximately 200 million persons in developing countries. The disease is caused by several species of schistosome blood flukes, which develop in compatible species of freshwater snails. Compatibility between schistosomes and their snail intermediate hosts is determined in part by the outcome of the interaction of the larval parasite with the host's innate immune system, and in incompatible snails the larval schistosome parasites are attacked and killed by immune cells. The specific aims of the proposed research are to identify one or more specific pathogen-associated molecules to which the innate immune system of B. glabrata responds, and then to characterize this response at the molecular level.

Jacqueline Taylor, Professor of Philosophy, College of Arts and Sciences, recently published her book Reflecting Subjects: Passion, Sympathy, and Society in Hume's Philosophy. The book is an original reconstruction of Hume's social theory, which examines the passions and imagination in relation to institutions such as government and the economy.

Allison Thorson, Assistant Professor of Communication Studies, College of Arts and Sciences, co-authored "Quality Interactions and Family Storytelling," published in Communication Reports in 2013. The article won the 2016 Milton Dickens Award for Exemplary Empirical Research, which recognizes the best empirically-based research published in the journal.

Sergio De La Torre, Assistant Professor, Art + Architecture, College of Arts and Sciences, received two new grants: $16K from the Warhol Foundation and $15K from the San Francisco Arts Commission to work as a curator on an exhibition called "La Fotografía en México, 1996-2014." This project is an exhibition covering photographic practices in Mexico during the last 25 years. A catalog, with a historical survey of photography in Mexico, will accompany the exhibition. The exhibition opened in San Francisco at SF Camerawork in Spring 2015 and will travel to Arizona State University Art Museum in Summer 2015, Instituto Sonorense de Cultura in Fall 2015, and El Centro de la Imagen Mexico City in Spring 2016 .

David Uminsky, Assistant Professor, Mathematics, College of Arts and Sciences, received an NSF grant for three years for $149,994 for his project "Dynamics and Pattern Formation of Non-local Collective Motion and Assembly ." This is a Research for Undergraduate Institutions (RUI) award in partnership with Dr. James von Brecht at UCLA. Professors Uminsky and von Brecht will be studying pattern formation and related phenomena that occur in systems with a large number of "particles" driven by non-local collective motion laws. The math of these particle systems has relevance for many disciplines, appearing in models in physics, chemistry, and biology. Two undergraduate students will contribute to the research and participate in summer study at UCLA.

Aparna Venkatesan, Associate Professor, Physics and Astronomy, College of Arts and Sciences, is part of a three-year collaborative grant for $437,883 that was funded by the National Science Foundation to support the Undergraduate ALFALFA Team (UAT) project . Led by Professor Rebecca Koopmann at Union College, the UAT is a consortium of 19 undergraduate-focused institutions across the United States, of which USF is one of the newest members. This NSF-funded work with UAT will provide Professor Venkatesan and USF undergraduates with hands-on observing and data analysis experience at a world-class observing facility through annual workshops, involvement in a summer research program, opportunities to network and present results at national meetings, computer support for data analysis and remote observing, and cutting-edge collaborative research projects. Three USF physics major/astrophysics minor students have participated to date in ALFALFA research and activities. Christopher Downing (Class of 2013), Haley Sharp (Class of 2012), and Long Yan Yung (Class of 2014), observed at Arecibo Observatory in January 2013 with Prof. Venkatesan . Dr. Venkatesan was selected as a 2012 Dean's Scholar recipient in large part for her contributions in theoretical cosmology. Her work is currently being used by others to help detect the first sources of light in the universe and to understand the physical conditions in primordial galaxies.

Ja'Nina Walker, Assistant Professor of Communication Studies, College of Arts and Sciences

During the 2014-2015 academic school year, Professor Walker helped launch a campaign for the University of San Francisco community. The goal of the campaign was to bring awareness to various social privileges that affect students, faculty, and staff on and off campus. The Check Your Privilege Campaign received local and international attention with many universities replicating the campaign on their various campuses.

Peter Williamson, Assistant Professor, School of Education, was awarded the third year of funding for the Transition to Teaching grant, which will total $2,451,961 for five years. This Department of Education grant supports the goals of the San Francisco Teacher Residency program (SFTR). SFTR is a partnership among USF, Stanford University, the San Francisco Unified School District, the United Educators of San Francisco, and the San Francisco Education Fund. Through SFTR, more than 150 highly skilled teacher candidates will be recruited and prepared to teach in San Francisco's public schools in high-need subject areas such as math, science, and bilingual education. The program integrates masters' level courses with a year-long apprenticeship under the guidance of highly skilled demonstration teachers. The grant will support many of the fieldwork, induction, and research components of the program.

David Wolber, Professor, Computer Science, College of Arts and Sciences, was awarded an NSF grant entitled "Collaborative Research in Computational Thinking through Mobile Computing." This collaborative project involves MIT, Wellesley College, the University of Massachusetts, Lowell and Trinity College, and is for three years in the amount of $565,836. USF's award is for $94,839. The goal is to motivate more students to learn the fundamentals of computing by enabling them to build apps for phones and tablets. The project leverages App Inventor, a new visual programming tool for building mobile apps, and will focus on the creation of online, Khan Academy-like teaching resources. Additionally, he was awarded a $200,000 grant by the Keck Foundation to help further develop App Inventor and the Democratize Computing Lab at USF. Professor Wolber has received a host of awards, including a NSF grant, to support his ground-breaking research.

Mary Kate Wood, Assistant Dean; and Jessie Jones-Bell, Adjunct Professor, School of Nursing and Health Professions received a $97,600 grant from Kaiser Permanente Northern California Fund for Health Education in September 2014. The award will support the RN Community-Based Transition to Practice Program, which builds the capacity of community-based care providers by preparing newly graduated RNs to succeed in these unique settings.

Taymiya R. Zaman, Associate Professor of History, College of Arts and Sciences, recent article, "Nostalgia, Lahore, and the Ghost of Aurangzeb," in Fragments: Interdisciplinary Approaches to the Study of Ancient and Medieval Pasts, addresses the conflicting pasts that play a role in shaping political discourse in present-day India and Pakistan. The article traces how the image of Aurangzeb, as a fanatical Muslim, was created by 19th century British colonial historiography, and how the ghost of Aurangzeb surfaces in Lahore, Pakistan, in response to pain caused by the political upheaval of the present.

Alan Ziajka, Associate Vice Provost for Academic Affairs and University Historian, and Robert Elias, Professor of Politics, College of Arts and Sciences

co-authored the University of San Francisco, part of Arcadia Publishing's Campus History Series. Through images and accompanying text, the book traces the history of USF from its founding in 1855 through 2014.
